Introduction

In India, data on key developmental indicators that formulate policies and interventions are routinely available for the administrative units of districts but not for the political units of Parliamentary Constituencies (PC). Members of Parliament (MPs) in the Lok Sabha, each representing 543 PCs as per the 2014 India map, are the representatives with the most direct interaction with their constituents. The MPs are responsible for articulating the vision and the implementation of public policies at the national level and for their respective constituencies. In order for MPs to efficiently and effectively serve their people, and also for the constituents to understand the performance of their MPs, it is critical to produce the most accurate and up-to-date evidence on the state of health and well-being at the PC-level. However, absence of PC identifiers in nationally representative surveys or the Census has eluded an assessment of how a PC is doing with regards to key indicators of nutrition, health and development.

In this report, we present PC estimates for indicators of nutrition, health and development derived from two data sources:

- The National Family Health Survey 4 (NFHS-4) District Factsheets: the data was downloaded from http://rchiips.org/nfhs/districtfactsheet_NFHS-4.shtml

- The National Sample Survey (NSS), 2010-11, 2011-12, 2014: the data was downloaded from multiple sources.
    - Data on nutrient intake downloaded from: https://tatanin.org/#/dashboard/nutrient-intake
    - Data on MPCE, poverty, and GINI extracted from: Mohanty, S.K., Govil, D., Chauhan, R.K., Kim, R. and Subramanian, S.V., 2016. Estimates of poverty and inequality in the districts of India, 2011–2012. Journal of Development Policy and Practice, 1(2), pp.142-202.
    - Data on remaining indicators were calculated by the authors based on raw data from : http://www.mospi.gov.in/national-sample-survey-office-nsso

The methodology to produce the PC estimates from district-level data is provided in: "Burden of Child Malnutrition in India: A View from Parliamentary Constituencies".

In addition to the tables presented in this report, all the indicators are classified into quintiles and are visualized through PC-level maps at: https://www.hsph.harvard.edu/population-development/indiapcfactsheets/
